"I'm personally not in favour of suspension of the bankruptcy code for fresh bankruptcies. It's too long, At best it could have been three mouths. Maybe push it ablit further. But lirms have to restructure debt. If debt restructuring does not take place, there is no possibility of resolving debt. Isee this as a potential problem for cleaning up of old sectors and also financial restructuring of hose that have got into trouble. We should consider reopening of bankruptcy in the next three months; he said.

he said.

Entrepreneurs who have been impacted by the covid-19 pandemic require long-term financing as they are in a foog of uncertainty, said Acharya. This will happen once banks are better capitalized to absorb losses, he contended.

"Banks need to be well capitalized. They need to have capital on the balance sheet to absorb losses. What has shappened in the court in the balance sheet to absorb losses. LUXURY TO MASS MARKET, BRANDS REACH CONSUMERS IN NEW WAYS

In Manu Sharma, group vice-president, Reliance Brands, spoke to Mint last month, he took pains to explain how the company, which has brought premium and luxury brands to India, was reaching out to customers. 'Distanceselling' was the new mantra for its portfolio of fashion and lifestyle brands such as Diesel, Gas, Jimmy Choo, Kate Spade and Steve Madden. It meant reaching out to its weet and whatsApp, offering video tours of the stores and new ranges, closing deals and getting out to its weet manges, closing deals and getting the products delivered home. Among the affluent, whose incomes have not been impacted by the pandemic, Reliance Brands billed more than 3,000 customers for bags, shoes, children's wear, jewellery and casual wear between May and June.

Even Titan Co.'s jewellery division chief executive officer Ajoy Chawla spoke of closing transactions with 2,000 customers of Tanishq via video calls. However, most Tanishq shoppers preferred to pick their jewellery on their own from the stores. Chawla said customer behaviour is unlikely to return to precovid-19 days in a hurry.

India has a historical context to selling luxury.

Traditionally, it was customary for merchants to visit the rich, the aristocrats and the noble with their wares. Street bazaars were the norm for the general populace, while the rich were always serviced at School. Some modern-day luxury retailers, too, adopted similar methods for their ultra-premium clients. But the pandemic has ensuared this becomes astandard practice across brands as the fear of step ping out and contracting the disease looms.

With phased unlocking of the country, brands have been quick to innovate. To access customers reluctant to visit stores, they have resorted to various formats. Some have created digital e-stores, yet oth ers carry goods to client sites for a display and sell mobile stores"—a concept adopted from 'food rucks'. It is now not unusual to see mini stores cre ated inside well-decorated trucks or b residential areas on specified days," Gupta said. To reassure anxious consumers, Farah Malik Bhanji, chief executive and managing director of footwear retailer Metro Brands Lid, has introduced home-visit and drive-through services—the latter being the domain of food companies so far. The ser-vice is available at all its stores that are not in containment zones. In drive-through, customers can either drive to Metro stores and share their requirements or call in advance and have their footwear and accessories delivered to their parked cars.

At fast-food chain McDonald's, Saurabh Kalra explained the thinking behind launching the new on-the-go service at almost all its outlets that are McDonald's India West and South, said after lock-downs were eased, its 60 drive-through restaurants were the fastest to see sales recovery. They gave very strong indicators that this is a new stage available to us to play on, "he said.

Globally, McDonald's thrives on its drive-through outlets. In India, people prefer to get down and sit in arestaurant to eat. "That's also because here eating out is not a daily affair," Kalra said. But covid has changed that. The company devised a plan to convert even its non-drive-through outlets into drive-throughs by serving customers in their parked cass if they opted for the On-the-Go feature on its McDelivery app.

With little additional cost, the company has business and Kalra thinks that some of these new practices will outlast covid. For instance, customers incities with long commutes could continue availing the new service. The pandemic is likely to change some consumer habits for good. "Convenience, comfort, security and privacy are becoming the new foundational norms for any relationship. The trend is likely to continue and evolve further," Gupta observed.

Has covid-19 pushed companies to pamper the reluctant customer? Kalra doesn't agree: "Businesses exist to solve a problem from a consumer standpoint. Whenever there's disruption, businesses shift to offer added value to the consumer. And they appreciate by giving us more business. It augurs well for the long-term health of the brand."

Shortly before 6:30 pm (local time) on Tuesday, police

America under Joe Biden

President Donald Trump is painting a dystopian portrait of what Joe Biden's America might look like, asserting crime and chaos would ravage communities should the former vice president win the White House

Left unsaid: A recent surge in violent crime in several American cities has hap-

"Irony is way down the list of things that President Trump worries about," said Robert Spitzer, a political scientist at the State University of New York College at Cortland whose research focuses on gun politics and the American presidency. "He's turning to the old playbook appeal to the fears of Americans and then associate those fears with the Democratic Party, specifically Joe Biden." With echoes of Richard Nixon's law-and-order campaign in 1968, Trump is trying to energise his conservative base while also making an appeal to a small patch of undecided voters by posing the question: Which man will keep you safer? By leaning hard on select scenes of violence, Trump is banking on that unrest continuing. But the protests could wane. Violent crime around the US has been on a downward trajectory for the better part of the last three decades.

US Prez gives a glimpse of Ward off virus with HCQ: Trump

President supports doctor with weird conspiracy theories

LALIT K JHA Washington

US President Donald Trump has again defended the use of hydroxychloroquine to ward off coronavirus, saying many frontline medical workers agree with him that the malaria drug works in the early stages of COVID-19 infection, despite mounting evidence that it is ineffective in treating the disease.

"I happen to believe in it (hydroxychloroquine). I would take it. As you know, I took it for a 14day period, and I'm here. I happen to think it works in the early stages. I think frontline medical people believe that too -- some, many," Trump told reporters at a White House news conference on

"But the one thing we know: It's been out for a long time, that particular formula, and that's essentially, what it is, the pill. And it's been for malaria, lupus, and other things. It's safe. It doesn't cause problems. I had no problem. I had absolutely no problem, felt no different. Didn't feel good, bad, or indifferent. I tested, as you know. It didn't hurt me, and it's not going to hopefully hurt anybody," he said.

Meanwhile, President Donald Trump defended the doctor who claimed that hydroxychloroquine is a 'cure' for coronavirus after her videos were removed by Twitter and resulted in his son's account being suspended, according to Daily Mail.

In the video, Dr. Stella Immanuel, a physician from Houston whom Trump described as spectacular, promotes hydroxychloroquine as a sure-fire cure for the coronavirus. She claims to have successfully treated 350 people "and counting," including older patients and some with underlying medical conditions.

"You don't need masks, there is a cure," Immanuel says in the video. But in videos posted to her Facebook page, Immanuel regularly wears masks while preaching during religious events.

Dr. Stella Immanuel has a long history of supporting conspiracy theories and Trump ended his Tuesday press conference when pressed about his own retweets of her claims about hydroxychloroquine.

According to Daily Mail, Immanuel believes Jesus will destroy Facebook's servers after the site deleted a video in which she hydroxychloroquine claims cures coronavirus. Immanuel who also believes demon sex causes sickness and that reptilians help run the government thinks God is poised to strike down the social media site.

Mask-clad Muslims begin downsized Hajj

AGENCIES / Dubai

Pilgrims, donning face masks and moving in small groups after days in isolation, began arriving to Islam's holiest site in Mecca on Wednesday for the start of a historically unique and scaled-down hajj experience reshaped by the coronavirus pandemic.

The hajj is one of Islam's most important and profound requirements, performed once in a lifetime. The hajj, both physically and spiritually demanding, is intended to bring about greater humility and unity among Muslims. But rather than standing and praying shoulder-toshoulder in a sea of people from different walks of life, pilgrims this year are social distancing - standing apart and moving in small groups of 20 to limit exposure and the potential transmission of the coronavirus. While the experience will be starkly different, it remains an opportunity for pilgrims to wipe clean past sins, deepen their faith and fullfil one of Islam's five pillars.

"Becoming an Australian citizen means more than just living and working here - it's a pledge of ple and our values. When someone becomes a citizen, they make a pledge to uphold Australia's rights, liberties, laws and democratic values. It represents a willingness to integrate into our successful multicultural nation," Tudge said.

Protester slams Netanyahu with life-size 'last supper' statue

AGENCIES / Tel Aviv

Residents of the city of Tel Aviv woke up Wednesday to a jarring site: a pop-up exhibit depicting a life-size statue of Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu enjoying a lavish meal by himself at a sprawling table in a mock reenactment of the Last Supper. In recent weeks, thousands of people have taken to the streets, calling on Netanyahu to resign, angry over what they say is his bungled response to an economic crisis and depicting him as a hedonist out of touch with common people.

Artist Itay Zalait said the installation is meant to symbolise the "last supper of the Israeli democracy." The 10-meter long table is filled with platters of juicy fruit, wads of cash, empty bottles of liquor and a cigar - a jab at the expensive gifts Netanyahu is accused of improperly accepting from wealthy associates. Netanyahu, appearing pudgy and disheveled in a dark suit and red tie, is seen digging into a large cake - alone amid 12 empty chairs.
